Police looking for suspects in string of three carjackings

By Steve Marschke

West Sacramento has experienced three carjacking incidents between Oct. 21 and Oct. 29, and police feel that two of the incidents may have involved the same suspect.

On Oct. 21, at about 4:30 in the afternoon, a woman left the Burger King restaurant near West Capitol Ave. and Harbor Blvd. and found a man with a gun.

"A white male in his 20s put a gun to her shoulder and made her drive him away," said Lt. Ron Moore of the West Sacramento Police Dept. "In Vacaville, he got out and ran like hell."

The suspect is described as 6' tall, 180 lbs., with light brown hair and a medium build.

On Wednesday, Oct. 26, another car was hijacked.

"Around midnight, two suspects -- one black and one black or hispanic -- kidnapped a man in his car at the BP Station (at the West Capitol Ave./Westacre Rd. intersection) and drove him around a couple of hours, and released him. The car is still outstanding," said Moore.

The suspects were armed with a handgun.

On Saturday, Oct. 29, a third carjacking took place.

"It could be the same person (as in the Oct. 21 incident," said Moore.

That car, with a license plate number ZHSN670, is also still missing.

Car flees scene as Sacramento man is wounded by shots

By Steve Marschke

A Sacramento man is recuperating after being shot four times near Evergreen and Pine Street in West Sacramento on Thursday.

"At 11:46 p.m., we received a report of shots fired," said Lt. Ron Moore of the West Sacramento Police Departmento. "Officers responded and located a victim. He'd been shot four times in the lower side and body, by what looked like a small caliber handgun. He's alive and doing O.K."

The victim is Robert Holiman, age 23.

Officers have interviewed Holiman, but no arrests have yet been made.

Sacramento region to study port

■ Sacramento and Yolo County will join in new study of viability of Port of Sacramento and options for raising money for improving the facility

By Steve Marschke

Plans to buoy the Port of Sacramento through a land tax, covering Sacramento and eastern Yolo County, have been put on hold while officials on both sides of the Sacramento River study the port's needs and viability.

"The County of Sacramento asked us to stop for awhile while they and the other cities and counties started a report on the Port and its future," said Mike Vernon, director of the Port of Sacramento. "We're trying to get that done sooner rather than later, and no later than March 31."

Paul Hahn, a principal administrative analyst in the office of the Sacramento county executive, is the lead staff person for that study. He is working with officials from the City of Sacramento, the City of West Sacramento, and the County of Yolo, as well as with port officials, to develop the new study.

"The county board of supervisors asked for this," said Hahn. "When they heard the assessment district was getting serious play, they took a stand to oppose the assessment district until they had a chance to take a look at the port."

The facility has been exploring the idea of levying a $10 per parcel land tax on Sacramento and the eastern part of Yolo County (the boundaries of the port district) in order to raise tens of millions of dollars in capital. They say the money is needed to finish deepening the port's connection to the Bay Area in order to accommodate bigger ships, and for other improvements needed to remain competitive.

'Should we privatize the port? Can we come up with some otherkind of financing?'

-- Sacramento County's Paul Hahn

But the idea received a cool reception from officials in the city and county of Sacramento.

Hahn said the new study will try to look at all the options available with the port, including many already studied by port officials.

"Before we levy a parcel tax, should we look at consolidating the port with another port district? With another government agency? Should we privatize the port? Can we come up with some other kind of financing, such as general obligation bonds, which require a public vote?"

He said the study will also look at the status quo.

"Will the port survive without financing?"

The aim of the new study, he continued, is to take a look at all the issues "without prejudice."

"Let's get all the issues out on the table. No prejudice against a parcel tax, for a parcel tax, to close the port or to keep the port open."

Another issue to be examined is the rate of return to be reaped by the region through a $10 per parcel investment in the Port of Sacramento. Other agencies, such as the sheriff's depart-

■ Bay Area firm has chosen Vacaville as the site for its new 300-employee manufacturing plant, passing over a competing location in West Sacramento

By Steve Marschke

As many observers predicted, the Genentech corporation of South San Francisco has picked a 100-acre parcel in Vacaville as the new site of a 300-worker drug manufacturing facility.

"That was a major disappointment for us," said Val Toppenberg, deputy director of West Sacramento's redevelopment agency. Toppenberg had helped champion a 100-acre property in West Sacramento's Riverside Centre, located near Reed Ave. and I-80 in the city's northwest. Riverside is owned by the Ford Motore Land Development Company, and managed by the Koll Company.

Genentech is a "biopharmaceutical" firm. It produces genetically engineered drugs, and plans to use its new plant to produce a drug now working its way through the FDA approval process, said Toppenberg.

It has decided to purchase 100 acres in the Vaca Valley Business Park, owned by Chevron Land and Development, largely because that site is closer to the company's Bay Area headquarters.

"The reason they chose Vacaville was that the Vacaville site was 30 minutes closer to their South San Francisco headquarters," said Toppenberg.

Also passed over for the plant was a bid from Davis, as well as a second Vacaville property owned by Marvin "Buzz" Oates.

State still worried about sewage

■ City officials say sewage plant superintendent resigned but remains on payroll

By Steve Marschke

State officials expressed concern last week over continued sewage violations at the West Sacramento wastewater treatment plant, and have asked for an update on the plant's progress in January.

"Pretty much everyone was impressed with the fact that we have paid a great deal of attention to the problem, spent a lot of man-hours on it, improved the physical system at the plant, and brought in the best people we could find," said Larry von Kaenel of the city manager's office. "They were not impressed that we had continuing violations."

Staff members from the state regional water quality control board briefed the board on about 75 new violations on the plant since June, about the time West Sacramento received a $250,000 fine for permit violations. The recent violations have included problems in acidity, excess chlorine and bacteria found in the plant's waste stream on its way to the Sacramento River near Clarksburg.

Showing improved results between now and January should be easy, admitted von Kaenel. Problems at the plant have typically occurred in the summer, and violations have historically been rarer in the cold months.

"The real test is going to be next summer."

One source close to plant operations said violations have continued even during the past few days, as workers struggle to tune up a new treatment system that not everyone agrees will work.

The plant superintendent, Dale Klever, resigned Oct. 14 but is "still listed as a city employee," said von Kaenel. He added that he could not say whether Klever is on some kind of leave, but said that he may be retained for contract work with the public works department and "details of his departure are still being worked out."

Although several employees have left for stress leave and early retirement, no one has been fired from the plant since the News-Ledger first reported questions about its operations in the summer of 1993.

State water officials are also concerned that the city has not fully implemented an industrial "pre-treatment" program, designed to reduce the amounts of noxious substances heading into the sewage treatment plant on South River Road. Industrial discharges laced with heavy metals and other toxics are believed to be among the causes of the troubles at the plant. When they enter the sewage treatment system in large doses, they can disrupt treatment operations and "upset" the plant, resulting in poorly treated sewage.

The South River Road facility has no way of shunting aside "slugs" of such substances when informed that they have been inadvertently been released by local businesses, a city consultant admitted earlier this year. A public works official had previously told the News-Ledger that the plant had such an ability.

Von Kaenel said that a new pre-treatment program is in the works.

"Local limits (on the contents of industrial wastes) have been

Burning rice stubble brings smoke Tuesday

As a storm front brought drizzle, the air over much of West Sacramento also turned smoky for several hours on Tuesday afternoon and evening.

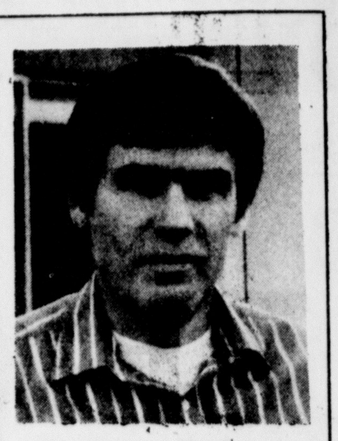
But the smoke was not, as many West Sacramentans wondered, from a fire somewhere in the city.

"It's a controlled burn in the Elkhorn area (near I-5 and east of Woodland)," said a fire department spokesperson. "We've been getting a lot of calls."

The fire was due to the burning of rice stubble in that area, and an inversion layer produced by the storm was spreading the smoke over West Sacramento, she added.

Mao Zedong, O.J. Simpson, heroes and green teeth

My Back Pages



By Daryl Fisher

A couple of weeks ago I was leisurely thumbing through the Sunday Sacramento Bee and I came across a rather lengthy article in the Forum section entitled "The Private Life Of Mao," by Li Zhisui. Dr. Zhisui was Mao Zedong's personal physician, having faithfully served the famous Chairman for the last twenty-one years of his long and eventful life, and "The Private Life Of Mao" turned out to be a tell-all tale published by Random House which has just recently hit the book stores.

In one of the excerpts from the book, Dr. Zhisui wrote, "Mao Zedong was not supposed to die. To hundreds of millions of Chinese, he had been not a man or even an emperor, but God Himself. For almost two decades, the slogan wishing him a life of ten thousand years had so dominated daily ritual that to many Chinese the words had become fact. Mao's image was everywhere and so was the slogan. To suggest that Mao was mortal was to risk being labeled counterrevolutionary."

But Mao did turn out to be mortal, and a little after midnight on September 9, 1976, while surrounded by a medical team of sixteen of China's best physicians--under the direction of Dr. Zhisui--and twenty-four excellent nurses, Mao exhaled deeply, closed his eyes and called it a lifetime.

As I read the article, it quickly became obvious that Dr. Zhisui was not only Mao's personal physician, but he was also (or at least he claimed to be) one's of Mao's few political confidants and therefore was privy to the most intimate details of the Chairman's life. Zhisui explained that "Mao led an isolated life, seldom saw his wife or his three children and had no friends." He apparently also suffered from insomnia, greatly enjoyed ballroom dancing (although it was prohibited right after the revolution as decadent and bourgeois) and also had a pretty kinky sex life. However, I wasn't truly shocked until I came across the following words: "As a relatively young man, Mao stopped bathing. He considered it a waste of time. He also did not brush his teeth, which were covered with a heavy greenish film. When I would press down on his gums, pus would ooze out."

Yuck! But there it was--staring right up at me in black and white--further proof positive that people (in this case hundreds of millions of Chinese men, women and children) just shouldn't have heroes.

When I was a young man, I fell in love with the musical lyrics of songwriter/singer Bob Dylan (although most of my family and friends refuse to believe he has ever been the latter) and he immediately became my hero--until I read a book by him which said that having heroes (including him) was just about the stupidest thing a person could do. "Heroes will always disappoint you," he wrote, and it's been one of the best pieces of advice I've ever come across.

"But you must have had some heroes," my daughter insisted when I told her I was going to write a column on the subject.

"Of course I have," I admitted, "but they all turned out just like Dylan said they would -- and I was prepared."

"Like who?" she asked.

"Well, let's see, there was Ty Cobb, who was the greatest hitter who ever lived and my very favorite baseball player -- I also named your brother after him -- and he turned out to be a racist psychopath; and Charles Lindberg, that courageous pilot Jimmy Stewart played in "The Spirit of St. Louis" who was the first man to fly across the Atlantic ocean. He ended up wanting to be a Nazi and making anti-semitic speeches all over the country; and then there was John Kennedy, who turned out to be a much better lover than a president; and of course sweet, lovable O.J., who has turned out to be God only knows what."

"But everyone needs heroes," said my daughter.

"Maybe so -- but certainly not famous ones we only think we know," I suggested. "Maybe all we really need to do is just spend some time now and then appreciating all the ordinary people around us who are busy doing real things to make their lives and the lives of the people they care about better?"

"But how can you tell which one of those are the real heroes -- you know -- someone really worth admiring?" she asked.

"I'm not sure," I said, "but my best guess is that you can quickly weed out anyone who doesn't bathe or brush their teeth."

Neighbors Helping Neighbors

Mary spotted the dirty brown station wagon parked in front of her neighbor's house when she pulled into her driveway at 2:00 p.m. The lights were out but the front door was slightly ajar. She thought it was strange since Bill never came home from work before 7:00 p.m. and she didn't see his car. When she got in the house, she called Bill at his office. He hadn't been expecting any visitors. She called the police and they were able to corner the would-be burglar as he carried the television out the door.*

Neighbors looking out for neighbors. That's the foundation of the Neighborhood Watch program. According to the West Sacramento Police Department, twenty-five West Sacramento neighborhoods currently have active Neighborhood Watch groups in place.

The most basic crime prevention technique is awareness. Neighborhood Watch groups encourage citizens to stay alert, making it impossible for criminals to go unnoticed. If there is a problem in the neighborhood, the group provides a channel through which to distribute information quickly and prevent additional loses.

A self-appointed "block captain" organizes the neighborhood, delineated by city blocks. Usually, the block captain is motivated to get involved by personal experience — a crime too close to home.

The block captain hosts the initial group meetings, which provide a forum for neighbors to meet, exchange phone numbers and discuss their concerns. An officer from the West Sacramento Police Department provides basic crime prevention information and uses the opportunity to meet residents and address specific problems. The block captain follows up by distributing updates from the Police Department.

The West Sacramento Police Department is actively working to expand its crime prevention activities through citizen involvement. Citizens are encouraged to call the Crime Tip Hotline (552-2047) with information that will lead to identification of individuals suspected of criminal activity. Additionally, the Department is researching the technology necessary to develop a computerized communication system to put Neighborhood Watch groups and others on alert regarding criminal activity and suspects that might be in their area.

West Sacramento's Neighborhood Watch program is one of the most active in the region. On the recent "Night Out," an annual, national event focusing on community building and crime prevention, over 400 people participated in block parties and barbecues to demonstrate their commitment.

Soccer player is new RCHS football kicker

PETER SANTIZO

Every once in a while a young man will come along who can really kick the football.

River City has had to run the two point conversion because of no kicker. River City lost to McClatchy 14 to 12 because of no conversion. Then, against Dixon, here comes a young sophomore who is a soccer player by the name of Peter Santizo, #13. River City failed on the first three conversions.

On the fourth touchdown, here comes Peter on the field to kick the conversion point. Everyone said, "What is wrong with Coach Massey? He is going to try to kick the extra point." Peter didn't just try, he kicked the conversion point and then the next one. The next week, Peter kicked two more against Vanden.

Friday night against Lincoln, Peter kicked 7 more conversion points. Peter is only a sophomore so he has a lot of games to go. Peter is now 20 for 23 on the conversion point kicks.

This is the first time since about 1985 that River City has had a man to kick extra points and in a close game, that can be the difference between a win and a loss.

Rookie QB Gus Frerotte will start for the Redskins, as Heath Shuler, the third-round draft pick, remains on the bench despite having recovered from a sprained ankle.

49ers 31, Redskins 13.

Dallas (7-1) plays on Monday night against the New York Giants (3-5), who have lost five games in a row. The Cowboys then will travel to San Francisco for the BIG game on Nov. 13 against the 49ers. News-Ledger Editorial

The Joy of Voting

It's that time of year again.

For one thing, it's one of two times of the year when the weather in West Sacramento has a decent chance of being pleasant -- not too hot, not too cold. And for another, it's time to head to the ballot boxes.

Once inside the polls, there is a brief, shining moment when we're all equal. We can punch a hole in a card to root for our favorite politician or favorite cause. The more cynical among us, who find little on the ballot to root for, can punch a hole to cancel out the vote of Pete Wilson, or Kathleen Brown, or Mike McGowan, or Maurice Johannessen, or the editor of the News-Ledger, or whoever else draws our ire.

Also for the cynical, it is, as been stated here before, the time when we "earn the right to complain." Those who do not participate in the political process really have no right to complain about its results. Those who vote, and who take the time to try to get a handle on the issues beforehand, do.

It's easy to sit back and gripe about the state of America's government and never bother trying to do the one thing we can about it: vote. So please vote yes or no on the ballot propositions. Vote for one of the main candidates for governor. Or if you don't like the main candidates for governor or the other state offices, read the ballot statements and vote for one of the minor ones. (Sure, that might be a "wasted vote" now, but if enough people start doing it, the "minor" parties may not be so "minor" at some point in the future. American political parties are forever in evolution -- why not be part of that force for change?)

Voting is cheap. It's easy. And it leaves a tremendous feeling of satisfaction.

And if that's not enough, how about a little extra incentive: send in your complete set of Nov. 8 ballot stubs with your next renewal or your new News-Ledger subscription, and we'll give you another three months of the newspaper free. O.K., the savings won't make you rich, but every little bit helps, right?

Yes, the Philip Morris tobacco company is one of the key sponsors of the "Californians for Statewide Smoking Restrictions" group paying for this ad, which will run in nearly every California newspaper this week. They are spending millions of dollars trying to get you to help them pass Prop. 188.

Need anything more be said?

Letters from the machine:

Every election season, a newspaper gets a flood of political letters. A few are genuine, individual expressions from someone who felt moved to voice an opinion on a candidate or issue. More are coordinated through a campaign committee, designed to look like the other kind but really mass produced and then signed by people involved one way or another in the campaign. The signers often have little to do with drafting the letter itself.

Particularly when local politics are involved (not so much in this election, since no local issues are on the ballot), newspaper editors are treated to some colorful "fake" letters. These are usually criticizing somebody or some thing. They are often signed with made up names and made up return addresses. For some reason, they are also usually hand delivered in the middle of the night through the office mail slot.

These letters rarely make it into print.

True low-rent letters also include those postcards printed up by big organizations, already printed with the newspaper's address and a pre-worded message. The sender merely stamps it, signs it and pops it in the mail. Sorry, but these don't have quite the impact of a true, individual effort.

The National Rifle Association is currently flooding the media with such cards, promoting a book authored by one of its own. At least a hundred people, from Shingle Springs to Vacaville, have wasted their stamps in recommending this book to the News-Ledger. None has written a personal note to go along with the NRA's message.

Letter Policy:

To be considered for publication, letters must be signed and include the author's address and telephone number (which will be kept confidential). Letters should be brief and may be edited for length or objectionable content, although the News-Ledger attempts to print letters in their entirety.

Send your submissions to the News-Ledger, P.O. Box 463, West Sacramento, CA 95691.

Deadline is the Saturday before publication.

Letters to the Editor

Smokescreen

Philip Morris' Proposition 188 is the ultimate SMOKESCREEN. The tobacco giant is attempting to deceive California voters into believing their breathing air quality will become BETTER is Prop. 188 is approved by voters on November 8. While this appears to be the case in localities where no smoking restrictions as yet apply, it is a boldface lie where smoking is no longer allowed in public buildings. Prop. 188 would cancel some 300 local ordinances controlling indoor smoking as well as AB 13, which in 1995 would ban smoking in virtually all workplaces. If passed, only another statewide initiative could reverse this attempt to (once again) allow smoking in roughly 25% of restaurant space, etc.

It boils down to the right to smoke wherever one wants to vs. the right to breathe decent smoke-free air for all. Are we to trust Philip Morris or such noble groups as the American Cancer Society, American Lung Association, American Heart Association and American Medical Association? Shall big money prevail? Protect and improve our breathing air by voting NO on Prop. 188, and thus allowing AB 13 to become law next year.

Health care

This letter is written not so much in support of Prop. 186 which with national health care "reform" dead is the answer to our state's health care security, but because in our discussions with concerned voters many have been saturated with the one-sided ads of the opposition and have, therefore unanswered questions. For example, those retired individuals with insurance through the State PERS system wonder if they would "lose" what they now have when Prop. 186 goes into effect.

This is a factual question, easily answered. The PERS state system (like the federal system, Congress' benefits. Veterans merchant marines, etc.) would need additional legislation to bring the participants into the 186 health care system and if the participants agree that the new state system is better, answers to this type of question can be secured from PERS members for Prop. 186, 429-0295; general questions on the facts contained in Prop. 196 can be answered at 442-4474.

Voters will if they read the Act, discover that it is a statute which can be amended by the California legislature so that purported shortcomings of the Act are in some cases only anticipating the worst possible scenario as the act is administered.

We believe that even if we ourselves are doing relatively well under the present system that the trends in managed care, competition among HMO's for managed Medicare plans makes our present health care security vulnerable. In addition, we believe that the system must cover the needs of all citizens.

The voters will make their own choices; we shall all win if the vote is an informed one and if all registered do vote.

The candidates speak out:

Election day is next Tuesday, Nov. 8.

West Sacramento's Democratic Congressman, Vic Fazio, faces a challenge from Republican Tim LeFever. Its Assemblyman, Democrat Tom Hannigan, is being challenged by Bryant Stocking. And there are a number of important issues and state posts up for grabs, from the governor's seat to a "single payer" health care initiative.

But the race generating the most local interest is the campaign for the Fourth District seat in the State Senate. Republican K. Maurice Johannessen of Redding is facing Democrat Michael McGowan, who served as West Sacramento's first mayor and is currently a member of the Yolo County Board of Supervisors. Both candidates have been featured in News-Ledger interviews during the campaign.

But to help further define the two candidates, the News-Ledger has invited them to participate in a brief survey on their stands on major issues. They were asked identical questions, and requested to respond in 500 words or less.

The questions, and the candidates answers, follow:

Michael McGowan:

Attorney; former member of the West Sacramento City Council; the city's first mayor; current member of the Yolo County Board of Supervisors. Democrat.

What is the most important issue facing California and the State Senate over the next few years?

Education at all levels directly affects the business climate of California, and directly controls our entire future. California's historical growth is due to a quality public education system. The future of California is tied to the revitalization of our schools from kindergarten through graduate school.

What particular leadership qualities or styles would you bring to the Senate?

I provide leadership making towns throughout the Fourth Senate District the center of public policy, not an office in the State Capitol. Being a State Senator means the potholes are bigger (major policy issues and problems) but they still need to be urgently fixed.

What did you accomplish when you served your region in local government (city/county) level)?

As a Councilmember, my leadership doubled the number of law enforcement officers on the street resulting in a cumulative drop in major violent crime of 4.90% (1988-1992). At the same time, my efforts brought 9,994 new jobs (business expansions and relocations) to our city. As Supervisor, I have fought to enhance the delicate balance between economic development growth and the preservation of agriculture in Yolo County.

What is the current leadership of California doing right? What is it doing wrong?

California's leadership has begun to recognize the need for bipartisan solutions to resolve major problems (i.e. State Workers' Compensation reform) and avoiding worthless political rhetoric. Our priorities are still way out of whack. The state is still giving away bid dollar jobs to political appointees when we are struggling to get money for cops and schools.

Do you favor or oppose Proposition 184, the "three strikes and you're out" initiative? Why?

I support Proposition 184. The ability to remove repeat, violent offenders from our streets is critical. Fighting crime doesn't end here and we can't just build new prisons. We need successful diversion programs to keep non-violent offenders out of our prisons so we can house the three strikes criminal.

Do you favor or oppose Proposition 186, the "single payer" health initiative? Why

I oppose Proposition 186. The healthcare system is in serious need of repair, especially for the uncovered, working poor. Healthcare reform needs to be enacted in concert with, not in opposition to successful healthcare reform implemented nationally.

Do you favor or oppose Proposition 187, the "save our state" immigration initiative? Why?

I support Proposition 187. The state can not afford to pay for services to anyone who enters this country illegally. It is time the federal government got the bill. It is the constitutional duty of the federal government to pay for all costs of illegal immigration."

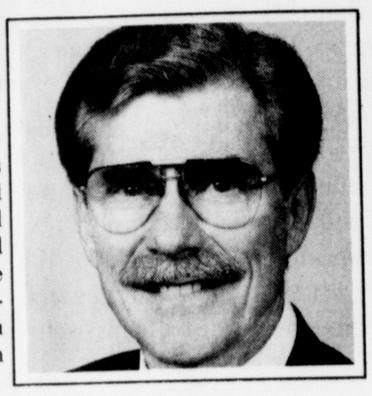
Do you favor or oppose Proposition 188, the smoking restrictions initiative?

I am strongly opposed to Proposition 188.

Please see McGOWAN, next page

Maurice Johannessen:

Businessman; State Senator; former member of the Shasta County Board of Supervisors; former mayor and councilman, City of Redding. Republican.



What is the most important issue facing California and the State Senate over the next few years?

We must get control of runaway spending. We're billions in debt, but the liberals still find billions to subsidize illegal aliens. I was just named "Taxfighter of the Year" by the National Tax Limitation committee, which should give you a good idea of where I stand on tax and spending issues.

What particular leadership qualities or styles would you bring to the Senate?

In less than a year, I have proven that you don't have to compromise your principles to get things done. In fact, that's a sure prescription for disaster. Am I confrontational when it comes to fighting runaway spending and higher taxes? You bet I am and I make no apologies.

What did you accomplish when you served your region in local government (city/county) level)?

We balanced the budget and maintained vital services, starting with law enforcement. Official crime statistics from the FBI and state Department of Justice show crime went down while I was mayor. In fact, you would have been twice as safe in Redding when I was mayor, compared to West Sacramento. You've got some fine law enforcement people in West Sacramento, but they often don't get the support they need.

What is the current leadership of California doing right? What is it doing wrong?

Bill Lockyer and the liberal majority in Sacramento have bankrupted our state and now they want to "tax us into prosperity." That is wrongheaded and destructive. We need leaders willing to say "No." We did force liberals to pass "Three Strikes" and my "Criminal Aliens Act" to turn illegal alien convicts over to the federal government for incarceration or deportation. That one bill will save California taxpayers almost half a billion dollars a year.

Do you favor or oppose Proposition 184, the "three strikes and you're out" initiative? Why?

I was a Senate co-author of the "Three Strikes" legislation and am proud to have the endorsement of Mike Reynolds, the author of the "Three Strikes" initiative.

McGOWAN from previous page

Are state candidates, as a whole, addressing the right issues in their debates and advertising campaigns in this election season?

As far as addressing what voters react to and what voters truly respond to, that will depend on the morning following Election Day. Those candidates that win will say yes and those who lose will say no.

Is there anything specific you would try to accomplish for West Sacramento as a State Senator?

I will use every opportunity to foster opportunities for the needs of West Sacramento to have equal access to state agencies, programs and especially the ability to compete fairly for an opportunity to consolidate state agencies into office buildings located in West Sacramento.

Why should Californians vote in this election?

I left West Sacramento as a Marine in 1968 to fight in Vietnam for my country and our constitution. It is our moral, ethical, and constitutional duty as citizens of West Sacramento, California, and the United States of America to vote.

Do you favor or oppose Proposition 186, the "single payer" health initiative? Why

Proposition 186 would be an unmitigated disaster for California seniors and taxpayers. It seizes all private health care facilities and makes them government property, while actually raising the costs of health care. It didn't work in Easter Europe, so why should we try it here?

Do you favor or oppose Proposition 187, the "save our state" immigration initiative? Why?

I support Proposition 187 and I believe it is constitutional. We need more than rhetoric from politicians, we need effective action, which Proposition 187 provides. We cannot continue to offer welfare and free government services to the citizens of other countries, while ignoring our own people. That is dead wrong.

Do you favor or oppose Proposition 188, the smoking restrictions initiative?

I don't like smoking, but I hate government tyranny even more. Proposition 188 simply replaces local regulation of private property with state regulation. This is supposed to be a free country. I say let restaurant owners do what they want with their own property and let customers do what they want with their own dollars.

Are state candidates, as a whole, addressing the right issues in their debates and advertising campaigns in this election season?

I'm ready to toss my television set out in the yard until after November 8. Does that answer the question?

Is there anything specific you would try to accomplish for West Sacramento as a State Senator?

I have successfully fought to change state bidding practices which unfairly penalize West Sacramento businesses.

Why should Californians vote in this election?

Because it is the legacy of those who have given their lives that we might have the privilege.

Low cost flu shots begin this week in West Sac

County health officials are encouraging people 60 years and older to take advantage of low-cost flu shot clinics this fall to protect themselves from influenza this winter. Persons allergic to eggs should not be given the flu shot.

Seniors are the principal target of the public flu campaign because if they catch the flu, it can get serious quickly. "With aging, flu fighting ability slows down," Dr. Bates said.

In West Sacramento, the clinics will be held on November 2 and Nov. 3 at Sam Coombs Activity Center, 205 Stone Blvd., between 1 and 3 p.m., and on November 16 at the West Sacramento Senior Center, 664 Cummins Way, between 1 and 3 p.m. The clinics also provide pneumonia and tetanus shots. Pneumovax is given one time only and is $8. Tetanus is given every ten years and is $10. Flu shots are $3.

If clients have Medicare Part B, the Public Health Department can bill Medicare for these shots. Please bring your Medicare card with you.

To all heirs, beneficiaries, creditors, contingent creditors, and persons who may be otherwise interested in the will or estate, or both, of Gerald E. Magonigal:

A PETITION has been filed by CLAYTON H. MAGONIGAL in the Superior Court of California, County of Yolo.

The PETITION requests that CLAYTON H. MAGONIGAL be appointed as personal representative to administer the estate of the decedent.

The PETITION requests authority to administer the estate under the Independent Administration of Estates Act. IF YOU OBJECT to the granting of the petition, you should appear at the hearing and state your objections or file written objections with the court before the hearing. Your appearance may be in person or by your attorney.

IF YOU ARE A CREDITOR or a contingent creditor of the deceased, you must file your claim with the court and mail a copy to the personal representative appointed by the court within four months from the date of first issuance of letters as provided in section 1250 of the California Probate Code. A Request for Special Notice form is available from the court clerk.

YOU MAY EXAMINE the file kept by the court. If you are a person interested in the estate, you may file with the court a formal Request for Special Notice of the filing of an inventory and appraisal of estate assets or of any petition or account as provided in section 1250 of the California Probate Code. NOTICE OF PETITION TO ADMINISTER ESTATE OF GERALD E. MAGONIGAL
CASE NO. 20860

To all heirs, beneficiaries, creditors, contingent creditors, and persons who may be otherwise interested in the will or estate, or both, of Gerald E. Magonigal:

A PETITION has been filed by CLAYTON H. MAGONIGAL in the Superior Court of California, County of Yolo.

The PETITION requests that CLAYTON H. MAGONIGAL be appointed as personal representative to administer the estate of the decedent.

The PETITION requests authority to administer the estate under the Independent Administration of Estates Act. (This authority will follow the personal representative to take many actions without obtaining court approval. Before taking certain very important actions, however, the personal representative will be required to give notice to interested persons unless they have waived notice or consented to the proposed action.) The independent administration authority will be granted unless an interested person files an objection to the petition and shows good cause why the court should not grant the authority.

A HEARING on the petition will be held on November 15, 1994 at 8:30 a.m. in Dept. 7, Room 116, located at 725 Court Street, Woodland, CA 95695.

IF YOU OBJECT to the granting of the petition, you should appear at the hearing and state your objections or file written objections with the court before the hearing. Your appearance may be in person or by your attorney.

IF YOU ARE A CREDITOR or a contingent creditor of the deceased, you must file your claim with the court and mail a copy to the personal representative appointed by the court within four months from the date of first issuance of letters as provided in section 1250 of the California Probate Code. A Request for Special Notice form is available from the court clerk.

YOU MAY EXAMINE the file kept by the court. If you are a person interested in the estate, you may file with the court a formal Request for Special Notice of the filing of an inventory and appraisal of estate assets or of any petition or account as provided in section 1250 of the California Probate Code. A Request for Special Notice form is available from the court clerk.

OLG's young scientists:

By Lisa Beebe

Fourteen local students recently participated in the First Annual Sacramento Diocesan Elementary School Science Olympiad. Teams consisting of fourth, fifth, and sixth graders from 19 Sacramento area Catholic schools met to compete in various science events Friday, October 21, at Jesuit High School. Our Lady of Grace School was represented by: Callie Beebe; Michael Booth; Jake Hansen; Jaymie Nannini; Kristen Amegin; Chris LeFevre; Michael Moore; Kelly Postada; Aaron Coen; Kenny Fortune; Clayton Brown; Alex Chan; Kelly Schlavch; and Catherine Tarrico. Sixth grade instructor, Mrs. Del Parr, was the team coach and coordinator.

Areas of competition included astronomy, map reading, tree identification, chemistry, anatomy, insect classification, scientist recognition, estimations, a pentathlon, and light reflection relay. There were also events just for fun, such as a second story egg drop, bridge building with straws and pins, rock and mineral identification, ecology and oceanography.

Third place ribbons were awarded to Calllie Beebe for "Leaf and Tree Finding," and Jaymie Nannini and Kelly Schlavch for."Estimania."

All of the students studied hard and performed well. The experience was fun and inspiring. Who knows, maybe someone you know will grow up to be a rocket scientist!

City beautification week starts

The City of West Sacramento has expanded its "Beautfication" activities by adding a fall "Beautification Week," from November 7 through 12. The fall Beautification Week will give city residents a convenient opportunity to dispose or recycle unsightly residential "junk" at a Tower Court and West Capitol Avenue drop-of site.

"Beautification Week enables the community to get involved in sprucing up the city. At the same time it provides the public with a convenient drop-off location, making it easy to unload unwanted items that may be laying around their homes and apartments," said Don Schatzel, director of the city's department of parks and community services.

The drop-of site, located on the south side of West Capitol Avenue directly past Tower Court, will accept, free of charge, most types of oversized residential rubbish (meaning it does not fit in regular trash cans), wood waste (scrap lumber, brush, and tree limbs), scrap metal (empty water heaters and car parts that do not contain fluids), corrugated cardboard, and used tires. The drop-off location will be open from 3 to 5 p.m. Monday, November 7 through Friday, November 11 and from 9 a.m to 3 p.m. on Saturday, November 12.

The event will emphasize the collection of used tires. New state regulations make tire disposal more expensive. Through funding from the California Integrated Waste Management Board, used tires collected during Beautification Week will be recycled into asphalt. Also, city "Youth Diversion" crews will pick up illegally disposed tires from canals and river banks.

According to director Schatzel, Youth Diversion crews "provide community service while becoming educated in the process." Limited pick up of used tires will be available for those who are unable to take their tires to the drop-off location.

Department of Parks and Community Services officials sponsoring Beautification Week stress that the activities are available only for residential (non-business) citizens. Also, no household hazardous waste will be accepted at the Beautification drop-off location. However, the Yolo County Central Landfill, located 5 miles north of the city of Davis on County Road 28H will accept household hazardous waste Saturday, November 12.

For more information on Beautification Week activities you can call the Department of Parks and Community Services at 373-5860.

At last week's briefing, a previously vocal opponent of the city's sewage operations, Mark Fleming of the Sacramento Valley Toxics Campaign, was generally supportive of the city's efforts to fix its sewage plant.

But three present and former employees have reportedly filed a lawsuit against the city alleging that they faced job retaliation because of their whistleblowing activities.

Jerry Prosser said that he, John Parent and Tony Sperling were plaintiffs in the lawsuit.

Von Kaenel responded that the city had not yet been served with the lawsuit, and that he could not comment.

ment, could also make a case for the money, he said.

"You've got to prove it's worth it in terms of other needs and priorities," he commented.

Most of the port district's land value is in Sacramento city and county, although the facility itself is located in West Sacramento.

The port is governed by a commission controlled by Sacramento officials, but with representatives from West Sacramento and Yolo County.

Rising rice exports to Japan led the Port to a million-dollar profit this year after several years of financial losses and deferred maintenance.

Opening lead — king of diamonds.

It seems a pity that if both sides play a hand well, there must inevitably be a loser. Nevertheless, the fact is that justice is now always served, since nobody has yet figured out how both sides can emerge victorious in a given hand.

Consider this deal where South was in four spades and West led the king of diamonds. East saw little chance of defeating the contract unless he could get a club ruff, so he overtook the king with the ace and returned a club. He was planning to win the first trump lead with the ace and put his partner on lead with a diamond in order to get a club ruff.

The meaning of East's first two plays was not lost on South. Recognizing the danger of leading a trump at trick three, declarer cashed the A-K of hearts and continued with the deuce. But instead of ruffing the deuce, South discarded the jack of diamonds from dummy.

Superficially, this play simply swapped a diamond loser for a heart loser, but it actually did a lot more than that. East found himself the unhappy winner of a heart trick, and his well-conceived plan of defense came to naught.

East should perhaps have gotten at least a Croix de Guerre for effort, but as it was, all he had to show for it was a loss of 820 points. Ironically, he would have achieved the same unhappy result had he simply signalled with the eight of diamonds at trick one — as a less imaginative player might have done — but in that case, the challenge of the deal for both sides would never have materialized.
